What's Happening at CTKM

Dorothy Hook, an avid painter, teacher, and traveler, has spent three to four months painting each summer in the Northwest and Alaska for the past fourteen (24) years. She winters in rural Western Pennsylvania. Sketching on location, Dorothy paints the boats and harbors, towns and villages, spirit cemeteries, and isolated mountain vistas.

A former advertising marketing manager, she attended Penn State University to paint while her three children were in elementary school. Given three scholarships, she graduated with a Fine Arts Degree, Master of Science in Architecture, and a Ph.D. in Philosophy of Art and Architecture from Penn State. She also studied Architectural Design in Stained Glass and Mosaics at Berkeley. Extremely interested in the quest of spiritualism Dorothy has journeyed to several countries with the Interfaith Forum on Religion, Art and Architecture, an affiliate of the American Institute of Architects.

After teaching for six years in the Fine Arts Department of Penn State, DuBois Campus, she became an Artist-in-Resident for the Pennsylvania Council-on-the-Arts for 14 years. This gave her the exceptional opportunity to visit 90 Pennsylvania Schools working with students in designing and completing 76 permanent murals (from 30' to 80' in painted wood or sculptured ceramics).

Dorothy has had 52 one-woman exhibitions in galleries and universities and has won 70 top prizes in juried shows. She has also been an Artist-on-Board for the Inside Passage and has made six voyages down the Aleutian Chain to Dutch Harbor and Unalaska. Her "Watercolors of Alaska" series includes over 240 images and sketches of Alaska in limited edition postcards, notecards, and prints.

In the spring of 2001 Dorothy sketched and painted the rugged coastal areas of Ireland. Later in the summer, she experienced flying over and through the Mount McKinley (Denali) Alaskan Range in a ski plane, landing on the Ruth Glacier, which has inspired her to begin a series of abstract mountain paintings.
